

Major study program in Economics – Assessment level (1st & 2nd semesters)		60 ECTS credits
Economics:	Microeconomics I, Macroeconomics I	18
Business Administration:	Business Administration I + II, Financial Accounting	15
Finance:	Banking and Finance I + II	6
Informatics:	Informatics for Economists	3
Mathematics and Statistics:	Mathematics I + II, Statistics	18
Major study program in Economics – Advanced level (3rd – 6th semesters)		90 ECTS credits
Common compulsory program
Economics:	Microeconomics II, Macroeconomics II	6
Business Administration:	Business Administration III, Managerial Accounting, Financial Reporting	12
Statistics:	Introductory Econometrics	6
Working Methodology:	Introduction to Scientific Methods	3
Core elective areas
Macroeconomics (ECON 1):		36
Macroeconomics discusses overall economic issues, such as the impact of fiscal and monetary policy, as well as fundamental econometric methods.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Finance - Economic Theory of Politics - Public Regulation - Growth - International Economics - Monetary Policy - Empirical Economic Research - Quantitative Economic History - Economic Policy
Microeconomics (ECON 2):
Microeconomics explains the methods that economic theory uses to model optimum behavior on the part of individuals and companies, and provides an introduction to neuroeconomics.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Industrial Economics - Empirical Labor Market Research - Personnel and Organizational Economics - Environmental Economics - Information Economics - Behavioral Foundations of Economic Behavior - Rational Approach of Social Sciences - Neuroeconomics and Social Neuroscience
Elective area		9
Bachelor's thesis		18

Minor study program of choice (3rd – 6th semesters)	30 ECTS credits
Economics	Selection of a minor study program comprising 30 ECTS credits
Business Administration
Banking and Finance
General Business and Economics
Information Systems
People-Oriented Computing
Informatics
Depending on the programs on offer, students may select a minor study program offered by another faculty.	